A Member's Coastal Bender Story

I had been to AA the year before my current sobriety date. I went for 60 days, to get my wife (at the time) off my back and to learn to drink responsibly. Neither worked, but there were a couple things that occurred which remained with me. Probably the most poignant was walking into the "literature" room at 18th Street and grabbing a pamphlet that had a self-diagnostic test to determine your "drinking status". A couple of the questions were "do you drink in the morning", "do you drink alone", "do you think about drinking when you're not drinking", etc. I remember answering "no" to most questions, with an occasional yes thrown in and when the test was done, I thought I probably scored pretty well. Turning the pamphlet over, it said if you've answered yes to ANY of these questions you might have a drinking problem (it might have even said you might be an alcoholic). This was probably the earliest I can recall reality getting in the way of my denial. I used to say I was so far in denial I could see the pyramids, but the reality of that test remained. I tried some controlled drinking that year, unsuccessfully as it turned out. As the year wound down, my wife stayed on my butt about quitting and on the last day of the year, I was fired from a good oilfield job I'd held for 4 years. I showed up drunk at a job that day and ended up passing out in my truck and they couldn't wake me up when they were ready for my services. I was devastated and humiliated at being fired but that didn't stop me from drinking for almost 4 more months.

I found a menial job with some guys that pretty much drank and partied like I did, but my wife stayed on my back with the threat that she was about done and ready to hit the road. I remember sitting on my back porch steps and telling her I'd go to a meeting if she'd roll me a joint and bring me a tall Bud. She did both and after I continued my buzz, I looked up the AA intergroup hotline number, called and asked where there was a meeting that night. The address was a church off Santa Fe and my wife went with me (I can't recall if I wanted her support, or if she wanted to ensure I actually went to the meeting). The meeting must have been the Oso Group, however a twist of fate occurred that evening. At the time, when you walked into the hallway, there was a basketball court on the left and a cafeteria on the other side of a glass wall. I saw a group of people in a big circle and having been to AA the year before, I knew that was the meeting and we went in and sat down. During the meeting, I was hearing "easy does it" and "one day at a time", so I knew I was in the right place. I was also hearing PDAP and I thought maybe that was a saying I didn't hear the year before, but I soon found out otherwise. A guy came up after the meeting and asked if it was our first Palmer Drug Abuse Program meeting? I told him I thought we were in an AA meeting and he said he no, but asked me to come by his office that next day and asked if I thought I could stay sober until then. I told him I could and the following day I met him in his office, sober. He was a counselor with PDAP, about my same age and while I sat there in his office bawling my eyes out, he pretty much told my story. He suggested 90 meetings in 90 days and since PDAP only had two meetings a week, he suggested I find an AA group.

I had just begun a new job in the oilfield and it allowed me the time to attend AA meetings daily. I often made three meetings a day, thinking I'd do AA like I did drugs, double the dose in half the time. Although early sobriety was a blur, I felt for the first time that I had an idea of why I was the way I was, I was an alcoholic. In a weird way it was a relief to be able to give it a name. Early sobriety was pretty magical for me, at least after 30 days when I had to throw our mattress away because I had sweated out all the nasty stuff that accumulates after years of alcohol abuse. One of the early miracles in sobriety was not waking up full of guilt and remorse about closing the bar down the night before and swearing I'd never ever drink again. Never ever lasts until about 5PM, when I was just going to have a couple and go home, only to repeat the cycle again and again. AA taught me the principal of "one day at a time" or one hour, or 5 minutes, as opposed to never ever and it works so much better. I got a sponsor, went to meetings and my sponsor started having me do service work; first emptying ashtrays and making coffee, then picking up some guys from a local halfway house and taking them to meetings. He even had me elected assistant treasurer of the group and to the best of my knowledge I didn't steal anything from them. Sponsors are pretty smart folks (maybe it's God that's pretty smart and puts the sponsors we need in our lives). About this time, I actually started liking myself and it wasn't so painful to look into a mirror. I was fortunate to be involved with a home group (and with PDAP) and they had a lot of sober parties, campouts and coffee after almost every meeting. There was a restaurant in town and most nights @9PM the local recovery community would pretty much outnumber the other patrons; it was a blast.

I don't go to many late evening meetings, so I'm rarely at any late evening coffee houses. I have a home group and I attend meetings regularly. There have been times I've gone to lots more and lots less. I have a sponsor and I use him. The steps continue to work in my life and I continue to hear the message of recovery at meetings. The newcomer is still the most important person at the meeting, although my ego thinks otherwise on occasion. I love the life AA and God has given me, it has truly been a gift, one I wasn't searching for but grateful for having found it. My first sober day, the day I walked into the counselor's office, March 27, 1985 and I haven't had a drink (or a joint) since.

CBIA Appreciates Ongoing Support

Thank you to the 2023 Jamboree Committee and all their hard work. The Committee did an outstanding job again this year. Thanks to all who donated money, items, time and effort to having another successful event. CBIA depends on this event to fund the support of the office throughout the year. We are feeling the pinch of bills increasing as well as everyone else, so we are extremely grateful for the dedication of this Committee to continue to raise money every year!

The CBIA office provides for the sale of literature, pamphlets, chips and medallions to individuals and groups in our area. Our mission is to be the 1st vital contact for alcoholic seeking help by maintaining a 24-hour helpline and providing schedules to alcoholics seeking a meeting. We cannot do this without the help of the entire area fellowship.

The 2023 Jamboree Committee was able to donate to CBIA this year $14,000.00.

Individual Contributions

We are grateful that individual members of our community have made contributions to Coastal Bend Intergroup. You can donate on the Birthday Club list by just sending in a donation or drop it by the office. We are pleased with how many do send contributions throughout the year and we will continue to hope for ongoing individual support through 2023.
